Blogs are usually dedicated to a specific topic, in this case, “global energy”. Often they are identified as a “blog”. Blogs can be created by authoritative sources or anyone who chooses to create one. This blog is created by Platts, a reliable provider of energy and metals information.

Blogs are usually searchable by keyword. Blogs usually invite and post comments from their readers. Blogs often categorize their posts by topics to enable readers to access posts on particular topics. Blogs often include an archive of all posts.