1. CARBON CAPTURE AND STORAGE (SEQUESTRATION)

Carbon dioxide (CO₂) is an end product created by the combustion of carbon-based fuel. It is usually released to the atmosphere, and most scientists believe these emissions are a major contributing factor to climate change. Under both international law and U.S. domestic law, CO₂ is a pollutant, but it cannot be controlled with the techniques used...

INTEGRITY AS THE CORNERSTONE OF SUSTAINABILITY
Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation Special Institute | April 10-12, 2019 | 2019 NO. 3 RMMLF-INST 2A

Preventing systemic corruption is a challenge, but is a necessary step for the improvement of democracy. The following paper outlines recent anticorruption enforcement efforts in Brazil, the cultural shift that is required to combat bribery, and a discussion on the necessity of integrity as the underpinning to legal reformation efforts in Brazil's...

THE REGULATION OF CANADIAN LOBBYISTS DOMESTICALLY AND ABROAD
Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation Special Institute | April 10-12, 2019 | 2019 NO. 3 RMMLF-INST 3A

Lobbying is a word that is often synonymous with corporate influence, bribery, and corruption. This perception stands in strong contrast to the conceptual view of lobbying as a central part of the democratic process. Lobbying enables a democratic dialogue between various interest groups and the political institutions that regulate such industries...

LOBBY AND LAWYERS: A SOUTH AMERICAN OVERVIEW
Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation Special Institute | April 10-12, 2019 | 2019 NO. 3 RMMLF-INST 3B

Lobby and legal advice can often be supplemental services reasonably expected to be provided by lawyers as applied to certain matters. Indeed, lawyer's advocacy of a client's interest, coupled with the skills and understanding that these professionals have to negotiate and understand the intricacies of the law provide them with a unique set of...

LOBBYING AND LAWYERING: BOTH ARE CRITICAL TO PROJECT DEVELOPMENT BUT THERE ARE CRITICAL DIFFERENCES TO UNDERSTAND
Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation Special Institute | April 10-12, 2019 | 2019 NO. 3 RMMLF-INST 3C

The right to petition the government is recognized by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. This right dictates that lawyers can go and talk to the government and advocate for their clients' interests. Natural resources lawyers understand that, indeed, working with the federal government is how most projects are ultimately...
